The Democrats Win a Great Victory in Arkansas—Voting in Vermont.

FIRST GUN.

Arkansas Goes Democratic Largely.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 7.—The returns from the state and county elections are meagre, but are sufficient to show the election of the democratic state ticket by a large majority, the third-party movement, or labor ticket, getting a very small vote. The legislature will be democratic by about the usual majority. There has been a very exciting contest in this (Pulaski) county for county officers. No official returns have been made, but indications point to the election of the democratic ticket by several hundred majority.

The democratic state ticket has been elected by an estimated majority of 20,000, and the democrats have also elected a majority of members of the legislature. The republicans claim Jefferson, Deshaw, Chicot, Phillips and Lafayette counties, while the Wheelers have elected several legislative candidates.

VERMONT ELECTIONS.

The Battle This Fall Unusually Vigorous.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Although this is an off year, it is evident that both the republican and democratic parties will poll a vote largely in excess of that usually cast in an off year. The issue for the republicans involve the election of a United States senator to succeed Mr. Edmunds. There are three tickets in the field: Democratic, republican and prohibition. The offices to be filled are governor, members of congress, treasurer, auditor and secretary of state.

Labor Ticket in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—The labor conference here nominated a full state ticket, headed by H. C. Baker for governor.

Steele Renominated.

Special to THE SENTINEL.

PERU, Ind., Sept. 7.—Geo. W. Steele was this afternoon renominated by the republicans of the Eleventh district, on the fifth ballot. Mr. Steele previous to the ballot assured the delegates that he did not wish the nomination and begged that his name be dropped, but he was nominated in spite of his opponents, who were W. H. Trammell, of Huntington; J. P. C. Shanks, of Portland; J. N. Tynes, of Peru, and R. S. Peterson, of Decatur. The convention was large and numerous.

PAN-HANDLE SMASH.

A Bad Wreck and an Engineer Injured Near Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 7.—At 10 a. m., yesterday, at a point about three miles from town, over the river, the third section of freight train No. 43, on the Pan-Handle ran into the second section. The caboose of the second section and nine cars were badly wrecked and piled upon the track, the engine of the colliding section was also badly smashed, and Engineer George Ruhe injured about the head, fatally it is feared. No. 7, passenger train, due here at 11:30, is delayed by the blockade on the track. It is not yet known to what cause the accident is due.

Fire Loses in August.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The New York Commercial Bulletin's estimate of the fire loss in the United States and Canada in August is $13,000,000, or 80 per cent. above the usual August average. Forest fires are estimated at $3,000,000. The Bulletin remarks that the figures indicate the country prefers getting out of the frying pan into the fire.

Francis Murphy is resting at his home in Pittsburg.

FOR CONGRESS.

A List of the Nominations Already Made for the Fiftieth Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The following will show all the nominees for the Fiftieth Congress made up last night. The total number of Democrats, Republicans, Prohibitionists, Knights of Labor and Independents is 238. Of this number the Democrats have nominated 119; the Republicans 77; the Prohibitionists 33; the Knights of Labor 3; the Labor 1, and 3 Independents. Thus far the Democrats have renominated 55 out of the 119, and very few of their able men have suffered defeat at home. The same can be said of the Republicans, who returned 44 out of their 77 nominating conventions. The most marked change in a state delegation will be noticed in North Carolina. The entire Georgia delegation is returned, with the exception of Hammond, Reese and Harris, able men.

The nominations in Indiana are Joe E. McCullough, Menzies, dem.; A. P. Hovey, rep.; John H. O'Neil, dem.; Cobb declined; A. P. Charles, probable, rep.; Jonas G. Howard, dem., renominated; A. D. THE K. OF P.'S.

Notes of Their Pleasant Excursion to Warsaw Yesterday.

Warsaw Times.

Charley Munson, of Fort Wayne, and who is at present the democratic candidate for auditor of state, came out from that place with the Knights of Pythias excursion this morning. Charley is a lively fellow.

Gen. James W. Carnahan, and Gen. J. Ross, of Indianapolis, are here to take part in the Knights of Pythias excursion party and picnic. E. G. Herr, of Goshen, is also here.

"Doc" Bookwalter, foreman of the Fort Wayne Gazette press room—a position he has occupied for many years—came out with the Knights of Pythias excursion from that place to-day, and gave us a pleasant call this morning.

The Uniformed Rank K. of P. is pretty well represented at the picnic to-day. Columbia City Division, No. 23, has twenty-five uniformed members with a drum corps, and Fort Wayne has sixteen uniformed members and also a drum corps. The Fort Wayne Division is commanded by J. D. Olds, and that of Columbia City by J. E. Lawrence. The excursion will return this evening, leaving at 9 o'clock.

The Knights of Pythias excursion from Fort Wayne arrived this morning at 10 o'clock, being about a half-hour behind time. There were fully three hundred in the party, and it possesses every element for a grand good time. The party stopped at Spring-Fountain Park, where they were met by a reception committee from Forrest Lodge K. of P., of this place—a body of men fully alive to the interests of the city, as well as of the order of which they are members.

LEW OLIVER

The Fort Wayne Sport on a Lark Abroad.

The Indianapolis News says: "Lake Morrison, the hackman, had two women and two men—one L. H. Oliver, a gambler, from Fort Wayne—out on Saturday night, and they were putting a vermilion frieze on the city. About 4 o'clock Sunday morning, Oliver got into a fuss with the driver, and knocked him down and tried to shoot him, for which a warrant was sworn out for his arrest this morning, and the police are in search of him."

The Indianapolis Sentinel adds: "L. H. Oliver, while riding Sunday in a hack, became involved in a quarrel with the hack driver and shot at him. A warrant was sworn out yesterday and Oliver was arrested and slated for assault and battery and drawing deadly weapons."

An Easy Thing.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—A Batavia, O., special says that the democratic convention of the Seventh Ohio district to-day nominated by acclamation Hon. James E. Campbell, for congress.

FROM THE BOAT.

An Open Letter from One of the Candidates.

HEAD WATERS, SALT RIVER, A few days behind time, 1886.

Dr. Geo. W. Lough:

SIR: Pardon me for not writing sooner, as it was quite late on Saturday evening when we arrived here. You will remember it was after 2 o'clock p. m. on Saturday when our boat left "Prince's Dock." Few of our crew having had any idea of coming this way, we had little time to arrange our baggage when the hammer of the "Bell" struck the signal of our departure. Being one of the first to enlist I naturally expected a front seat, but our captain, Joe Jenkinson, ordered me to sit in the rear on account of the obnoxious effluvia arising from my feet. The first station on our way was Aboite. Here we did not stop, but passed on through Darroch's Hollow, and arrived at Arcola on time. Here we found Doc McDowell busy in his dispensary. Here each member of our crew wanted six doses of quinine, but the Dr. replied, "My God! boys, I can't give it to all of you," but, with his usual grin, agreed to divide. We next arrived at Huntertown. This place is composed of a post and doctor's office. Here we merely stopped to enquire the way to Dutch Ridge, a place where we arrived but a few minutes later, but, on account of scarcity of water, we passed on. We next passed the mouth of Cedar Creek. Here we anchored for a few minutes while Willis Maier lowered his hook for a bite, saying he believed he could catch a snoker for supper. He received a few bites, when his line broke, and he gave it up in despair. We next passed Milan Center. Here the waters were muddy and turbulent, as though an earthquake had taken place. We hurried on, and sailed through the well-fortified town of Monroeville without stopping. We found its principal gate strongly guarded by a large bull terrier called "Barney." Tom Heller wanted to stop and see his cousin, but Andy Gleiting and Joe Jenkinson protested, and we passed on. Soon we arrived at a place called Sheldon. Here I found the pecking in the ragder had given away. I asked the operator to telegraph you for some. He said he had plenty of thunder, but had run out of electricity, so we hurried on, our boat leaking fearfully. We passed the Ninth ward just at dark, and in a few minutes arrived at the head waters of Salt river. Here, to our surprise, we met our friend Bill Scott, whom we had not missed during our whole journey. He said he came here once before, by way of Dalman's run. This time he took a different route, via Gladesburg's Gap.

This is a queer place, the portion of the town assigned to us is in a dilapidated condition. Perry Randall brought suit before Judge Sinclair against Scott Swann, the native chief, to compel him to furnish us better quarters, but a compromise was finally made through Harry Hanna, the native's attorney, who claimed that the democrats never stayed here long enough to even pay for putting down carpets.

The natives here are "a peculiar people," of a dark, musty complexion, wearing neither hats or boots; claiming their forefathers to have been of the republican tribe from Allen county. We are all well, except Willis Maier got his feet wet while fishing, and is now troubled with the tooth ache—and not a dentist in all this land. Drs. Meyer and Rauch have formed a co-partnership and are hunting roots and herbs for medicine; Hayden is out looking after our gravel roads; while Jones and Emerick are preparing a revision to the constitution. Morgan Harrod is husking corn; Griebel and Jenkinson are balancing accounts and making out satisfactory reports; while Andy Glutting is doing a land office business; Beckman and Scott have each leased a farm, but granting water privileges to Gothe for running his mill; Reichelderfer is at present acting as trustee; Tom Heller is writing a book called "Four Years in Office; or, How I Got Left;" Bitteringer is busy trying to settle a dispute between Ryan and Gaffney; and as for myself, I am selling dog carts at cost, and occasionally delivering a lecture on Shiloh; or, "What I Know About Politics." But supper is ready and I must close; write soon to Yours in the future

Ex-candidate for Clerk.

The Journal Des Debats says grave events are imminent in Central Asia.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—In the house of commons this afternoon, Mr. Sexton gave notice that he would question Sir Michael Hicks Beach, chief secretary for Ireland, as to the truth of the statement that a reporter in the employ of the British government had been following Michael Davitt on his trip through Michigan and had taken down his speeches in full.

The assets are nominally $90,000, but parties who have investigated them think they will shrink to $25,000, and that Mr. Williams cannot pay 5 cents on the dollar.

There was great cheering in the democratic congressional convention at Indianapolis Saturday night when Mr. Bynum made his appearance, but the federal marshal stood still and said nothing. "Why don't you yell?" asked a reporter. "Am afraid to," was the reply. "President Cleveland's order says office-holders mustn't take an active part in politics."

Suit was begun in the Wabash circuit court against the city of Wabash by Irving Sweet, an employee of the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan railroad for $5,000 damages. The action is for injuries sustained by Sweet in falling through a sewer, on Allen street, last March. The sewer has been maintained by the C. W. & M. railroad, which had failed to keep the top in repair, and the city disclaims all liability. Sweet alleges, in his complaint, that he received injuries which will eventually prove fatal.

The Indianapolis News says: "The governor having issued an order instructing the adjutant general to muster in no more militia, there is a pertinent inquiry as to what the 'Koontz Cadets' expect to do with the aid they are alleged to be soliciting. The company has not yet been mustered in. If there is any aid to be had for military companies in the city the Shepherd Guards would like to secure it. They are $400 in debt for their new uniforms. POETS OF WISCONSIN.

MORE NAMES TO BE ENROLLED IN THE TEMPLE OF FAME.

(Special Correspondence.)

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—A noteworthy woman anywhere is Miss Albertine Woodward. A native of Philadelphia, but for many years a resident of Wisconsin, she is a prominent member of the writing guild of this state. Not handsome, certainly, but with a strong, sympathetic face, and such warm, generous enthusiasm of manner as makes her beautiful. She is of Scandinavian descent, speaks with a slight, delightful accent, and inherits the patriotic spirit of her people.

Miss Woodward is a devoted student and translator of Norse literature. She has also translated the text of the prize cantata to be given at the Sengertest. She is a fine musician, a passionate lover of music. Miss Woodward has many friends, and deserves them all.

Miss Madora Clark is an attractive young lady, short, plump, dark-eyed and dark-haired, with an agreeable vivacity of manner. She is energetic, ambitious and by some considered a little eccentric, with a fine faith in her own capabilities. She writes acceptable verse, and during a year's traveling in Europe did some excellent correspondence.

Her sister, Mrs. Julia Clark Chase, is equally well known. Since her marriage she seems to have written less than formerly. Possibly she has lived her poems instead of writing them.

Early in the literary life of these sisters they published a small volume of poems. They came from their country life in Neesho, Wis., to this city, and with a heart full of a beautiful, untried faith gave their treasures to the world. They met the usual fate; they were not good enough to be excellent. But it was experience, and experience is helpful. They have done much better work since then, and of their future who can prophesy?

Mrs. Helen Manville and her daughter, Miss Marion, are residents of La Crosse. They are handsome women. Notwithstanding their literary proclivities and attainments they have an evident taste for the pomps and vanities. Their garments are noticeably fashionable. Their speech and manners are conventional. They are not dwellers in Bohemia. Mrs. Manville has written much graceful, dainty verse; has published one volume. To the characteristics of the mother's writing the daughter adds a vigor and breadth of thought and expression that promise much for her future.

Miss Helen Bartlett, now of St. Paul, Minn., but formerly of Milwaukee, is always and everywhere a strikingly beautiful woman. She is tall, with a rich, dark, vivid beauty that seems the fit setting for her keen, clear, brilliant mentality.

She is not a poet, making no claim to being even one of the "silent singers," but she writes vigorous, incisive prose, and is one of the best literary critics in the west. The book that falls into her hands would tremble if it knew how. She held the position of critic and reviewer upon The Sentinel for several years and did exceptionally fine work. As a newspaper correspondent she has no superior in the west. She also writes a bright story. She is in no bondage to fashion; has little fondness for general society, but is charming to her chosen circle.

Her brother, Theodore Bartlett, whose recent death has saddened so many hearts, possessed literary abilities of a remarkably high and fine order, with rare personal and spiritual graces. He was a civil engineer by profession, but had written much both in prose and verse, though he had published very little. The last year of his life the appreciation and encouragement of those eminent in authorship inspired anew his literary aspirations. He competed for the prize last fall offered by Manager McClure for the best short story. Among 1,000 competitors he was successful, but when the announcement of the award came the first snows of the northwestern winter lay white upon his new-made grave. The story, "Liddy," was one of marvelous insight, simple directness and heart-breaking pathos; these seemed his distinctive literary characteristics. Had he lived he could not have failed to win a high place among the writers of the country.

Mr. Bartlett was shy, sensitive, refined, living in a world of ideals with which his outward life was in full harmony.

This gifted brother and sister were the only children of Frederick Bartlett, a brilliant lawyer who died just after winning a victory for Caleb Cushing in the famous St. Croix land grant case.

Though now living on the distant Kansas prairies Mrs. Ellen P. Allerton, as a literary woman, still belongs to Wisconsin. Here she wrote her first poems and made herself a home in the hearts of many readers. She is a delicate looking woman, strong of spirit, cheerful, earnest, full of faith and courage, finding in her simple, somewhat narrow life, what less happily endowed natures fail to find in wider, richer paths. She has published a volume of poems.

For the last six years Mrs. Allerton's home has been in Kansas, where amid the active duties of farm life, she has sent out many a brave, clear song, to which the world has gladly listened.

Mrs. Emily Hewitt Leland lives in a dainty Queen Anne cottage, in the pleasant little city of Eau Claire. In face and form she is very attractive, simple and natural in manner, independent in thought and action.

She wrote for many years over the name of Mignonette, published one or two books and many poems. Later years she has written over her own name. Mrs. Leland writes the best short story of any woman in the northwest. She has a keen but genial wit that is irresistible. Who is fortunate enough to have her for friend and correspondent finds a new south wind opened in his soul.

With all its pride in its living poets, Wisconsin does not cease to mourn for the silenced voice of one of its sweetest and truest singers, that one whom death claimed before the promise of her rare gifts had blossomed into fulfillment. In the flush of early womanhood, genius-dowered and love-crowned, she passed on to join the choir invisible—dear, beautiful, lamented, Faunt Driscoll.

Miss Ella Giles is not a poet. She is, on the contrary, the critic of the rhyming fraternity. She has published two novels, many essays and sketches, and in various ways is thoroughly identified with the literature of the west. She is a royal looking young woman, with black eyes, black hair worn aggressively high, regular features and a frank enthusiastic mentality. She has a consuming zeal in all charitable and reformatory matters, and is wise in statistical lore. Her friends say that she ought to have a pulpit; if she had she would preach Unitarian doctrine.

She once entered the lecture field with a lecture entitled "Some Mistakes of Ingersoll," but the public were unresponsive, and she concluded that her mission lay elsewhere. She is a woman of fine social gifts and graces and has many warm friends and admirers. Her home is in Madison, Wis.

HENRY S. BARNES.

For over a quarter of a century Physicians have prescribed NICHOLS' BARK AND IRON, as a reliable and valuable remedy for dyspepsia and general debility.

A GEORGIA convict has been keeping himself supplied with whisky for some time past in a very novel manner. He was once a moonshiner, and as soon as he had settled in his prison quarters he improvised a "worm" and a still, getting the different articles at different times. The worm was made of an india-rubber tube. The prisoners in his cell would save up their corn bread until a sufficient quantity had been obtained, when the distiller would make a fair article of corn whisky. The secret was well kept by the prisoners, who were thus enabled to get the r dram occasionally. The officers of the jail tested it for the first time on Wednesday, and declared that they had drunk worse whisky. An attempt at an escape led to an investigation, which developed the existence of the still.

"I am selling your Athlophoros and have a stock. It has been successful so far as heard from. I cured my wife of rheumatism last spring," writes D. J. Humphrey, a well known druggist of Napoleon, O., qualified to judge of its merits.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA. BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."

Mrs. SLOANE, the daughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt, has a magnificent summer residence at Lenox, Mass., where she is preparing to give a pastoral comedy performance after the fashion set by Lady Archibald Campbell in England. New York society is nothing if not English.

INTEREST in Capt. Howgate, the ex-disbursing clerk of the Signal Bureau, has been revived by the appointment of his daughter, Miss Ida E. Howgate to a clerkship in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. "This young lady," said Assistant Secretary Thompson, "passed the highest examination in her class and was certified by the Civil Service Commission for appointment. It is generally understood that she will be the principal support of her mother, and I do not think any one is uncharitable enough to punish the daughter for the sins of the father." Miss Howgate is a graduate of Vassar College, and is very highly esteemed by her associates as a young lady of decided character and unusual intellectual accomplishments.

John B. Gough.

No man of the present century exerted such a marked influence on behalf of the temperance cause as the late John B. Gough. During the past forty years he delivered nearly 10,000 addresses and traveled hundreds of thousands of miles. On January 15, 1885, he wrote: "For many years I have used POND'S EXTRACT with great benefit. It has been my companion in my extensive travels. For brisings, chafing or irritation I have found it invaluable. For sore throat, especially when tending to ulceration, I have found it very beneficial."

Gout is the ailment which afflicts Samuel J. Randall. His father and brother were killed by it.

In the Dear Old Days.

We differ in creed and politics, but we are a unit all the same on the desirableness of a fine head of hair. If you mourn the loss of your blessing and ornament, a bottle or two of Parker's Hair Balsam will make you look as you did in the dear old days. It is worth trying. It is the only standard 50-cent article for the hair.

for over a year, his suffering from Neuralgia was so great. Three doses of ATHLOPHOROS cured him.

Neuralgia, though one of the most common and most painful of diseases, has baffled all medical skill, and until the discovery of ATHLOPHOROS, a remedy, if not quite incurable, Athlophoros, usually and quickly cures it. This statement, though strong, is warranted by the facts. Thousands have tested its value and recommend it as the only remedy that brings relief. For ladies subject to neuralgia or nervous headaches it is indispensable. Athlophoros contains no opium, morphine, or other dangerous ingredients. It is absolutely harmless and universally successful in the prompt cure of this painful disease.

Ask your druggist for Athlophoros. If you cannot get it of him we will send it express paid on receipt of regular price—$1.00 per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

From a Prominent Democrat.

There is a newspaper published in Fort Wayne, called the Journal, which pretends to be a democratic newspaper. It should be, for its editor, Col. I. B. McDonald, is a democratic candidate for state senator. In this Journal of Sept. 7, in an article headed "Oberly Answered," with a picture to match of Dorman B. Eaton, formerly a republican civil service commissioner. The article printed in the Journal is a republican article, by a republican; first printed in a republican newspaper, for republican purposes solely. The Journal evidently did not know the subject matter discussed in Mr. Oberly's letter, or in Mr. Eaton's reply. There is but one way for that paper to atone for its error; and that is to print Mr. Oberly's letter to the New York Times, so that its readers may judge what Mr. Eaton and the republican party had to answer. Mr. Oberly proved from the official records that in 1884 Pension Commissioner Dudley, a republican, obtained 154 special pension examinations through the civil service commission, then republican, and that these 154 special examinations were all republicans, and used as political emissaries in doubtful states in the presidential campaign of 1884. The matter with Mr. Eaton was to relieve himself as one of the republican civil service commissioners and the republican party from the charge. Did he do it? To aid Mr. Eaton and the republican party, not the democratic party, the Journal prints the letter referred to. Therefore, it should now print Mr. Oberly's letter, and it may in that way save in honor what it has lost in common sense. That a democratic newspaper should do democratic things is the opinion of

THE M. E. CHURCH.

The National Association of Local Preachers.

The twenty-ninth annual session of the National Association of Local preachers of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held in this city, beginning on next Saturday, the 11th.

The Methodist Episcopal church has always maintained this distinctive feature in her economy, that of authorizing laymen to go out and preach the gospel, and it has proven to be a very successful provision for thousands of souls are every year converted and brought into the church through the labors of these authorized christian workers. These men are authorized by the church, after a careful examination of their gifts and qualifications, and are not self-appointed, but are licensed, and many are ordained as local deacons and elders by the bishops, so they have the right and authority to preach and administer the ordinances of the church. We make this explanation so that the people of this city may know that the men who will visit our city are such as are recognized by the church and are all christian workers by the authority of the church they represent. The business session of the meeting will be held in the College chapel. The program will be published in a few days.

The members of the local committee of arrangements will hold a meeting this evening at the parlors of the Berry street church to perfect arrangements for the proper entertainment of the delegates. We hope that our citizens will all interest themselves in assisting the Methodists in entertaining the members of this association.

The Democrats Win a Great Victory in Arkansas—Voting in Vermont.

FIRST GUN.

Arkansas Goes Democratic Largely.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 7.—The returns from the state and county elections are meagre, but are sufficient to show the election of the democratic state ticket by a large majority, the third-party movement, or labor ticket, getting a very small vote. The legislature will be democratic by about the usual majority. There has been a very exciting contest in this (Pulaski) county for county officers. No official returns have been made, but indications point to the election of the democratic ticket by several hundred majority.

The democratic state ticket has been elected by an estimated majority of 20,000, and the democrats have also elected a majority of members of the legislature. The republicans claim Jefferson, Dehaven, Chisler, Phillips and Lafayette counties, while the Whoolens have elected several legislative candidates.

VERMONT ELECTIONS.

The Battle This Fall Unusually Vigorous.

WATERBURY, Vt., Sept. 7.—Although this is an off year, it is evident that both the republican and democratic parties will poll a vote largely in excess of that usually cast in an off year. The issue for the republicans involves the election of a United States senator to succeed Mr. Edmunds. There are three tickets in the field: Democratic, republican and prohibition. The officers to be filled are governor, members of congress, treasurer, auditor and secretary of state.

LABOR TICKET IN CONNECTICUT.
HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—The labor conference here nominated a full state ticket, headed by H. C. Baker for governor.

Steele Renominated.

SPECIAL TO THE SENTINEL.
PERU, Ind., Sept. 7.—Geo. W. Steele was this afternoon renominated by the republicans of the Eleventh district, on the fifth ballot. Mr. Steele previous to the ballot assured the delegates that he did not wish the nomination and begged that his name be dropped. But he was nominated in spite of his opponents, who were W. H. THE K. OF P.'S.

Notes of Their Pleasant Excursion to Warsaw Yesterday.

WARREN TIMES.
CHARLEY MANNING, of Fort Wayne, and who is at present the democratic candidate for auditor of state, came out from that place with the Knights of Pythias excursion this morning. Charley is a lively fellow.

Gen. James W. Carnahan, and Gen. J. Ross, of Indianapolis, are here to take part in the Knights of Pythias excursion party and picnic. E. G. Herr, of Goshen, is also here.

"Doc" Bookwalter, foreman of the Fort Wayne Gazette press room—a position he has occupied for many years—came out with the Knights of Pythias excursion from that place to-day, and gave us a pleasant call this morning. The Uniformed Rank K. of P. is pretty well represented at the picnic to-day. Columbia City Division, No. 23, has twenty-five uniformed members with a drum corps, and Fort Wayne has sixteen uniformed members and also a drum corps. The Fort Wayne Division is commanded by J. D. Oila, and that of Columbia City by J. E. Lawrence. The excursion will return this evening, leaving at 9 o'clock.

The Knights of Pythias excursion from Fort Wayne arrived this morning at 10 o'clock, being about a half-hour behind time. There were fully three hundred in the party, and it possesses every element for a grand good time. The party stopped at Spring-Fountain Park, where they were met by a reception committee from Forest Lodge K. of P., of this place—a body of men fully alive to the interests of the city, as well as of the order of which they are members.

LEWY OLIVER.

The Fort Wayne Sport on a Lark Abroad.

The Indianapolis News says: "Luko Morrison, the huckster, had two women and two men—L. H. Oliver, a gambler, from Fort Wayne—out on Saturday night, and they were putting a vermilion frieze on the city. About 4 o'clock Monday morning, Oliver got into a fuss with the driver, and knocked him down and tried to shoot him, for which a warrant was sworn out for his arrest this morning, and the police are in search of him."

The Indianapolis Sentinel adds: "L. H. Oliver, while riding Sunday in a hack, because involved in a quarrel with the hack driver and shot at him. A warrant was sworn out yesterday and Oliver was arrested and slated for assault and battery and drawing deadly weapons."

An Easy Thing.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—A Batavia, O., special says: that the democratic convention of the Seventh Ohio district to-day nominated by acclamation Hon. James E. Campbell, for congress.

FROM THE BOAT.

An Open Letter from One of the Candidates.

HEAD WATERS, SALT RIVER, A few days behind time, 1886.

Dr. Geo. W. Lusk:
Sir: Pardon me for not writing sooner, as it was quite late on Saturday evening when we arrived here. You will remember it was after 2 o'clock p. m. on Saturday when our boat left "Prince's Dock." Few of our crew having had any idea of coming this way, we had little time to arrange our baggage when the hammer of the "Bell" struck the signal of our departure. Being one of the first to enlist I naturally expected a front seat, but our captain, Joe Jenkinson, ordered me to sit in the rear on account of the obnoxious effluvia arising from my feet. The first station on our way was Abolia. Here we did not stop, but passed on through Darroch's Hollow, and arrived at Arcola on time. Here we found Doc McDowell busy in his dispensary. Here each member of our crew wanted six dozens of quinine, but the Dr. replied, "My God! boys, I can't give it to all of you;" but, with his usual grin, agreed to divide. We next arrived at Agrestown. This place is composed of a post and doctor's office. Here we merely stopped to enquire the way to Dutch Ridge, a place where we arrived but a few minutes later, but on account of scarcity of water, we passed on. We next passed the mouth of Cedar Creek. Here we anchored for a few minutes while Willie Miller lowered his hook for a bite, saying he believed he could catch a sucker for supper. He received a few bites, when his line broke, and he gave it up in despair. We next passed Milan Center. Here the waters were muddy and turbulent, as though an earthquake had taken place. We hurried on and sailed through the well-fortified town of Monroeville without stopping. We found its principal gate strongly guarded by a large bull terrier called "Barney." Tom Heller wanted to stop and see his cousin, but Andy Gleiting and Joe Jenkinson protested, and we passed on. Soon we arrived at a place called Shuldon. Here I found the pecking in the regular had given away. I asked the operator to telegraph you for some. He said he had plenty of thunder, but had run out of electricity, so we hurried on, our boat leaking fearfully. We passed the Ninth ward just at dark, and in a few minutes arrived at the head waters of Salt river. Here, to our surprise, we met our friend Bill Scott, whom we had not missed during our whole journey. He said he came here once before, by way of Dalmatian's run. This time he took a different route, via Gladstone's Gap.

This is a queer place, the portion of the town assigned to us is in a dilapidated condition. Perry Randall brought suit before Judge Sinclair against Scott Swann, the native chief, to compel him to furnish us better quarters, but a compromise was finally made through Harry Hanna, the native's attorney, who claimed that the democrats never stayed here long enough to even pay for putting down carpels.

The natives here are "a peculiar people," of a dark, musty complexion, wearing neither hats or boots; claiming their forefathers to have been of the republican tribe from Allen county. We are all well, except Willie Miller got his feet wet while fishing, and is now troubled with the tooth ache—and not a dentist in all this land. Mrs. Meyer and Rachel have formed a co-partnership and are hunting roots and herbs for medicine; Hayden is out looking after our gravel roads; while Jones and Emerick are preparing a revision to the constitution. Morgan Harrod is hunking corn; (Griebe and Jenkinson are balancing accounts and making out satisfactory reports; while Andy Gleiting is doing a land office business; Beckman and Scott have each leased a farm, but granting water privileges to Gothe for running his mill; Reichelderfer is at present acting as trustee; Tom Heller is writing a book called "Four Years in Ohio; or, How I Got Lott;" Bittinger is busy trying to settle a difference between Ryan and Oaffney; and as for myself, I am selling dog carts at noon, and occasionally delivering a lecture on Shiloh; or, "What I Know About Politics." But supper is ready and I must close; write soon to

Yours in the future

D. W. Souder,

Ex-candidate for Clerk.

The action is for injuries sustained by Sweet in falling through a sewer, on Allen street, last March. The tower has been maintained by the C. POETS OF WISCONSIN.

MORE NAMES TO BE ENROLLED IN THE TEMPLE OF FAME.

(Special Correspondence.)

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—A noteworthy woman anywhere is Miss Allerton Woodard. A native of Philadelphia, but for many years a resident of Wisconsin, she is a prominent member of the writing guild of this state. Not handsome, certainly, but with a strong, sympathetic face, and such warm, generous enthusiasm of manner as makes her beautiful. She is a Scandinavian descent, speaks with a slight, delightful accent, and inherits the poetic spirit of her people.

Miss Woodard is a devoted student and translator of Norse literature. She has also translated the text of the Volsunga Saga, given at the Stoughton. She is a fine musician, a passionate lover of music. Miss Woodard has many friends and deserves them all.

Miss Holston Clark is an attention young lady, short, plump, dark-eyed and dark haired, with an agreeable vivacity of manner. She is energetic, ambitious and by some considered a little eccentric, with a fine faith in her own capabilities. She writes acceptable verse, and during a year's traveling in Europe did some excellent correspondence.

Her sister, Mrs. Julia Clark Chase, is equally well known. Since her marriage she seems to have written less than formerly. Possibly she has lived her poems instead of writing them.

Early in the literary life of these sisters they published a small volume of poems. They came from their country life in Neosho, Wis., to this city, with a heart full of a beautiful, untutored faith gave their treasures to the world. They and the novel fact; they were not good enough to be excellent; they were not bad enough to be good. But it was experience, not experience is helpful. They have had much better work since then, and of their future who can prophesy?

My Helen Maxwell and her daughter, Mrs. Marion, are residents of La Crosse. They are handsome and intelligent. Their literary proficiency and attainments have been an ideal for the poets and writers. Their poems are not only beautiful, but they are also practical. They are not only beautiful, but they are also practical. They are not only beautiful, but they are also practical.

prose and verse, though he had published very little. The last year of his life the appointment and encouragement of those eminent in authorship inspired since his literary aspirations. He composed for the first time a full length novel, "The Prince of the North," which was published by the University of Wisconsin Press. The novel is a masterpiece of the art, and is a masterpiece of the art, and is a masterpiece of the art.

Mr. Barrett was a sensitive, idealist, living in a world of ideals with which his outward life was in full harmony. This gifted brother and sister were the children of Frederick Barrett, a brilliant lawyer, who died just after winning a victory for the cause of the temperance cause.

Though now living on the distant Kansas prairie Mrs. Ellen D. Barrett, an literary woman, still belongs to Wisconsin. Her sister wrote her first poems and made herself a home in the hearts of many readers. She is a delicate, refined woman, strong of spirit, cheerful, earnest, full of faith and courage, finding in her simple, somewhat narrow life, what she has happily endeavored to find in wider, richer parts. She has published a volume of poems.

A German convict has been keeping himself supplied with whiskey for some time past in a very novel manner. He was once a moonshiner, and as soon as he had settled in his prison quarters he improvised a "worm" and a still, getting the different articles at different times. The worm was made of an India rubber tube. The prisoners in his cell would save up their corn meal until a sufficient quantity had been obtained, when the stiller would make a fair article of corn whiskey. The secret was well kept by the prisoners, who were thus enabled to get their dram occasionally. The officers of the jail tested it for the first time on Wednesday, and declared that they had drunk worse whiskey. An attempt at an escape led to an investigation, which developed the existence of the still.

"I am selling your Athlophoros and have a stock. It has been successful so far as heard from. It cured my wife of rheumatism last spring," writes D. J. Humphrey, a well known druggist of Napoleon, O., qualified to judge of its merits.

EXPRESS in Capt. Howgate, the ex-disbursing clerk of the Signal Bureau, has been revived by the appointment of his daughter, Miss Ida E. Howgate, to a clerkship in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. It is generally understood that she will be the principal support of her mother, and I do not think any one is uncharitable enough to punish the daughter for the sins of the father." Miss Howgate is a graduate of Vassar College, and is very highly esteemed by her associates as a young lady of decided character and unusual intellectual accomplishments.

During the past forty years he delivered nearly 10,000 addresses and traveled hundreds of thousands of miles. In January 16, 1885, he wrote: "For many years I have used POND'S EXTRACT with great benefit. It has been my companion in my extensive travels. For brisies, chafing or irritation I have found it invaluable. For sore throat, especially when leading to inflammation, I have found it very beneficial."

Gout is the ailment which afflicts Samuel J. Randall. His father and brother were killed by it.

It is the only standard standard for the hair.

General Lloyd Applewall, of New York, died on his farm in Rhode Island, from a stroke of apoplexy.
